RESULTS WHILE WAITING

By WALTER A. SHEAD

WNU Correspondent.
(EDITOR'S NOTE: This dispatch was filed from the atomic bomb testing area only shortly before the first test bomb was scheduled to be dropped.)

ABOARD USS APPALACHIAN—BIKINI ATOLL (Via Navy Radio)—This reporter does not intend to delve into the scientific aspects of this atomic bomb test, leaving that to the scientific writers and the scientists themselves. This test is primarily a military experiment to determine how the United States navy and other armed services can operate in the face of any future atomic warfare.

The experiments however by their very nature and the various tests which are to be made of atomic energy will produce by-products of knowledge in the fields of biochemistry, biology and medicine. Further knowledge will be gained also in the fields of radio, photography, geology, fish life and all the sciences which apply to ocean life.

Many Conjectures.
A tour of this ship and a visit to the staterooms where the newspaper men are housed conjures up the outcome of this bomb test measured only by the number of newspaper men aboard. This is almost true of the scientific writers themselves, for most all have different viewpoints on the possible developments.

These conjectures run the gamut of total destruction by tidal wave or earthquake of the entire task force in the vicinity of the bomb down to the theory that the bomb might even prove a dud forecast of the destruction of the atomic bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki made by the scientists connected with Uncle Sam's military establishments were fairly accurate and this reporter is willing to discard more fantastic conjectures and string along with some of these more conservative forecasts.

Earthquake or Tidal Wave?
In the first place Bikini lagoon, where the bomb will be dropped, is roughly 25 miles long and 10 miles wide and the water averages 100 feet in depth and one scientist likened the dropping of the bomb into such an expanse of water and air to a spark from a welder's torch dropped into a 30-acre lake. Scientists admit that the bomb may cause a slight earthquake and tidal wave but that in comparison with nature's earthquakes it will have no destructive violence and will only be recorded upon seismographic instruments.

Richard Cook, editor of the Hastings Banner, which championed the Sigler cause, saw in the returns that the average voter is pretty much of an independent, and hence resents what appears to be a machine attempt to put over one of its own members.

To quote: "The regular Republican party machine did everything possible to defeat Mr. Sigler. In fact, the people of the state in the closing days of the campaign were treated to the unusual spectacle of high elective officials of the state doing a sort of trained seal act in favor of one candidate."

Cook warned, however, that Sigler has a "man-sized job to do to win the election" and will be fought by many of the influential interests which opposed him in the primary.

Frank Morris, political writer of the Detroit Times, believed that Sigler received the votes of many Democrats. To quote: "First, the close fight in their own ranks, a large percentage of Democrats were attracted to Sigler because of his former allegiance to the Democratic party and because of his popular appeal for 'cleanest 48-hour government.' Sigler in 1928 was the Democratic nominee for attorney general. Morris said that Murray D. Van Wagener, the Democratic nominee, 'hopes the rains in the administration machine will split the Republican vote in November and make it possible to break the 30-year rule that no Democrat can be elected in an off year.' Another quote from Morris:

Sigler is no friend of Attorney General Dethmers and is expected to demand Dethmers' political head. It is likely, too, that he will down the candidacy of Secretary of State Herman Dignan who wants another term.

"Perhaps he may demand a completely new slate of Republican candidates. And usually the candidate for governor gets what he wants at a Republican convention."

The Detroit Free Press, which received a Pulitzer award for its Lansing grand jury crusade, heralded the ballot results as satisfactory evidence that many voters demand a "house-cleaning" at Lansing.

To quote: "The real issue was over Sigler as the symbol of clean government." Sigler made articulate the yearning for a cleansing of the whole State.

Hub M. George, Free Press political writer, said the Sigler victory "brought gloom to the Capitol" for it forewarned of the approaching shadow of a "thorough housecleaning." George said that Wayne County's 48,000 margin for Sigler was "the decisive factor."

when this bomb is dropped by the B-29 over the target array of naval ships. The most dramatic will be the second test when a bomb is detonated below the surface of the water in the midst of what is left of the target ships. The handicap under which the lay members of the press work is, however, that we will not know nor will we be told whether or not these bombs exploded at full efficiency or whether or not in fact they were duds.

TROOPS ARRIVE AT CAMP GRAYLING

The first of the Michigan State Troop detachments which are to train this summer at Camp Grayling, arrived here over the weekend and are far into the hard and rigorous program laid down for their training.

Three in camp besides the regular Camp Service Detachment and the Divisional Motor Repair Detachment include the Det. State Det. The Camp Detachment and Motor Repair group will remain at the camp for the entire training period. The Det. State Det. is here to help open the camp for the troops which will come here during the next few weeks for training, and will also be here during the final week helping to close the camp.

On July 8, the Divisional Headquarters, State Staff, Divisional Headquarters Detachment, State Detachment, Hdq. Co. 1st Signal Company, 1st Cml. Company, 1st Quartermaster's Bn., 1st Engineers Bn., 2nd Military Police Bn. and most of the 31st Infantry will arrive for a 10-day training session.

A. J. Nelson Heads
County Democrats

A J. "Tony" Nelson was elected County Chairman by the County Convention of the Democrats at a meeting last Monday evening.

Mrs. Bessie Doney, retiring County Clerk, was named Vice-Chairman, and James Post, candidate for County Treasurer, was elected Secretary.

County Delegates to the Democratic State Convention will be named at a later meeting, it was said.

Stream Improvement
Projects Begun

Two stream improvement crews of the Conservation Department's fish division are now in the field setting up structures to hasten the influx of raw sand into the East Branch of the Two Hearted River, and Pere Marquette River down from Baldwin. The erosion controls—sheet piling to protect banks and jetties to divert current—are being installed on state-owned land.

Six miles east of Cadillac on the Clam River is a thermograph which has begun the year-long record of air and water temperatures required before a novel contemplated improvement of this stream for trout can be started. The project under consideration would divert some stream water into ground storage, so it would return to the river downstream clear and cooler.

Early in July a third stream improvement party is to begin work on the North Branch of the AuSable River up from Lovells creating pools and narrowing the stream at intervals to speed the current.

On the Rifle River (Grousehaven) area the grading, improvement and repair of 15 miles of roads are being completed this week.

To Hold Annual School Board Meeting

On the back page of today's edition of the Avalanche a legal advertisement calling the attention of interested persons to the Annual School Board Meeting is published.

According to Board President Emil Giegling, Trustee George Schable, whose term expires will not serve another term. This will necessitate the election of a new member. The meeting will be held at the Grayling High School next Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. William Christenson, Mrs. Frank Severn and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schreiber attended the graduation exercises at N. Pleasant. Mrs. Robert Boivo was a member of this year's graduation class.

Trout for Au Sable Anglers

Its goal for the 1946 season the planting of a million legal-sized brook, brown, and rainbow trout in Michigan streams, the Michigan Department of Conservation is using boats wherever possible to insure the widest possible distribution of fish. Here, employees of the Grayling hatchery are releasing trout in the Au Sable. The Department planted 600,000 legal-sized trout last season, a shooting for a record million this year.

Defeat Gaylord, Face
Atlanta Here Sunday

With Bob Gildner hurling 4-hit ball, the Grayling Independents defeated Gaylord last Sunday at Gaylord to take over undisputed possession of second place in the North Central Michigan Baseball League. The only team ahead of Grayling is Roscommon, which has not yet lost a game. Grayling has one loss on its record—Roscommon defeated them on the local field on June 9.

Grayling committed but one error in the Sunday contest while collecting 13 hits. Gaylord played errorless ball but was unable to get at Gildner, who pitched superb ball and set down a large number of Gaylord batsmen, swinging.

Ross Thompson caught Gildner while Lew Stillwagon covered first, Bud Caid at second, B. Horner at third and Ed Carlson at Short; Phil Keway, Don Smock and Ed Smith played the outfield. George Hanson replaced Keway in the 7th inning.

The local team is scheduled to tangle with the league-leading Roscommon nine today as part of the Fourth of July celebration in Roscommon. The tilt will not affect the league standing, however, it is explained.

The next league game scheduled for Grayling is Sunday, when a dangerous Atlanta ball club invades Grayling.

Award Three More
US-27 Contracts

Among the low bidders for 15 state trunkline projects that were announced by State Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler were three who were awarded contracts for grading and drainage structures along the relocation of US-27.

The three projects, low bidders and amounts of bids are: 4.375 miles of grading and drainage structure on US-27 relocation around west side of Houghton Lake in Roscommon County, Louis Garavaglia and Son, Detroit, $137,479.38.

3.982 miles of drainage and drainage structure on US-27 relocation around west side of Higdon Lake in Roscommon and Crawford counties, L. J. Construction Company, Wyandotte, $72,092.95.

7.024 miles of grading and drainage structure on same relocation in Roscommon County, Terry and Steadman, Bay City, $226,176.23.

COUNTY GOP
ELECT OFFICERS

The Republican delegates met at the Court Room of the Crawford County Court House last Thursday afternoon and heard the Republican county nominees re-elected Carl W. Peterson, County Chairman, and Earl R. Burns, Secretary-Treasurer, for another term.

O. P. Schumann, Ray F. Clement and Leo Lovely were elected as county delegates to the Republican State Convention, which will be held in Detroit tomorrow. William Golnick, Carl Peterson and Robert W. Strong were named as alternates to the meeting.

Chris Jensen Injured
In Car Crash

Chris Jensen was hospitalized Monday night with serious scalp wounds as the result of an automobile collision at the intersection of US-27 and Charles St. Jensen, who was turning left into Charles Street, was in collision with a northbound automobile driven by James A. Harris of Detroit. The right front of the Harris machine was badly damaged, while almost all the glass in Jensen's car was broken and the rear of the car badly crushed. Jensen was taken to Mercy Hospital by a private car. The cause of the crash was being investigated by Sheriff John A. Papendick.

SUPERVISORS BURKE AND CARLSON APPEAL TO STATE TAX COMMISSIONClaim Tax Setup Is Unfair To Grayling

An appeal to the State Tax Commission was mailed Monday by Supervisors Edwin Carlson and George Burke, both members of the Board from Grayling, after they voted in the negative last week at the Board's meeting on tax equalization.

Their appeal pointed out that the County's taxable valuation was raised $891,000 this year, of which more than $407,000 was added from the City of Grayling. The two Supervisors from the city explained that this placed too large a share of the burden of raising taxes upon the property owners of Grayling while the residents of the county are not being assessed their proper percentage.

State tax board workers are

Roscommon To Hold
July 4 Celebration

The Civic Club of our neighbor, Roscommon, is sponsoring a July 4th celebration with a full program.

A parade will start at 1:00, followed by a ball game between the Roscommon and Grayling teams. Children's contests, races, etc., will follow immediately after the ball game. There will be a band concert at 8 p. m. and fireworks at 10. A dance which will feature both modern and old time dancing, follows the fireworks. The dance will be held at the high school gym and the high school swing band will furnish the music.

County Cattle Being Tested For Disease

In accordance with the regulations of the State of Michigan, the work of eradicating Bang's disease is in progress in Crawford County. All the dairy and breeding cattle over six months of age in Crawford County have been officially tested for Bang's disease, and, as a result of this test, Bang's disease is known to exist among the County's cattle not to exceed one percent, and the herd infection does not exceed five percent.

All the herds of cattle in which Bang's disease was found were quarantined by the state and will be released as proper tests have been completed to show that such herds are definitely free of the disease.

The Michigan Department of Agriculture through its Bureau of Animal Industry petitioned the Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, to officially declare Crawford County a disease-free area approved by both the Federal and State bureaus and department for a 3-year period. The action was taken and the County was so declared.

The movement of cattle into Crawford County and from herd to herd within the county must now be done in conformity with the regulations of the Michigan Department of Agriculture. Retests as are necessary will be made to maintain the accreditation, it was said.

LOVELLS NOTES

Mrs. T. Griswald, Mrs. Ruth Caid and daughter Margie, and Mrs. C. Stillwagon spent one day last week in Traverse City. Mrs. Caid had optical work done, while the rest of the party busied themselves shopping.

Lovells Town Hall is getting a new coat of paint, which improves the appearance very much. The work is being done by Archie Feldhauser with some helpers.

The party at the Town Hall Saturday night was well attended. A good crowd, good music, and a good time reported by all. These parties are to continue every Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lee and son Owen, of Detroit, are enjoying their vacation in Lovells; while here they are occupying the C. Stillwagon house. Their daughter Betty was with them the week-end. Betty is employed in Detroit.

Mr. Barber and Mr. Austin of Akron, Ohio, are registered at Douglas Hotel for two weeks vacation, and enjoying the fishing as well as the hotel's hospitality.

now at work in Crawford County attempting to discover discrepancies in the County's tax structure. It is understood that the usual procedure is to follow this investigation with a meeting which the County's supervisors will attend along with members of the State Tax Commission. At this time the various supervisors will be told by the Commission how much to increase or decrease their valuation roll in order to bring all parts of the county into balance with each other.

In view of the State Tax Commission's valuation of the County at around $3,500,000 while the Supervisors at their last week's session had a valuation of $3,365,540, it would appear that the valuation rolls of some townships would undoubtedly be increased. In like situations, however, the Commission has in some cases raised the entire county and in others decreased some valuations while raising other county units.

At the Board's meeting a year ago, the county valuation was increased $94,175, of which the city's share was $40,710, the plea pointed out. At that meeting a delegation from the Grayling School Board and another joint committee from the Grayling Kiwanis Club and Chamber of Commerce discussed the matter with the Board of Supervisors. Due to the low valuation placed on the county by the Board in contrast to the State Tax Commission's figure, the County School Districts were suffering a loss of State Aid monies, it was pointed out.

CIRCUIT COURT TO OPEN TUESDAY

With Circuit Court Judge John C. Shaffer of Gladwin presiding, the July term of the Crawford County Circuit Court opens here at the Court House Tuesday afternoon.

Two criminal cases are on the court calendar. Both men, Virgil Lee and John H. Wareham, are residents of Roscommon County and were brought to Justice Court before Justice Emil Giegling by troopers from the Gaylord State Police Post, for assisting and abetting in keeping and maintaining for hire, gain or reward, slot machines. Both pleaded guilty and were bound over to Circuit Court by Justice Giegling.

A civil case to be tried by jury is also on the docket, with Royale Wright, as trustee of the National Log Construction Company as plaintiff and Ezra A. Wood as defendant.

Three divorce cases are on the Chancery Case calendar.

Twenty-four Crawford County residents have been chosen for jury duty. Robert Funck, Clement Blaine and Albert Knibbs were drawn from the City of Grayling; John Turner, Albert Madill, Robert Lozon and Clare Melroy from Frederic Township; William Miller, Emma Stillwagon, Arthur Feldhauser and Ray Busby from Lovells Township; William Ferguson, Ivan Billman, Joseph Mallinger and Marjorie Richmond from Beaver Creek Township; Harry McEvers, Richard Babbitt and Pearl White from Maple Forest Township; Hugo Schreiber, Nelson Corwin and Norval Seppala from Grayling Township; and Ernest Corwin, Sarah E. Hartman and Robert A. Funsch from South Branch Township.

Accident Is Fatal
For Earl Wythe

Carlton Wythe suffered severe facial and chest injuries when he drove over a curb and into the Joy Barnard residence, Charlotte, Michigan, in an effort to avoid a collision with another car at the intersection of Horatio and Warren streets, in that city.

Also injured in the Wythe car were Mr. Wythe's father, Earl Wythe, 73, who suffered neck and knee bruises, and Robert Anthony, 28, and Herbert Feldhauser, 21, who received minor bruises. All were treated at the Hayes-Beach-Green Hospital. The other car, driven by Raymond R. Osee, 18, escaped damage. The impact of the crash moved the wall of the Barnard dwelling.

Earl Wythe passed away Sunday from the shock of the accident and was buried from Charlotte Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, interment being in Grand Lodge Cemetery, Charles, James, Herbert and Don Feldhauser, grandchildren of the deceased, and Gerald Fuller of Marshall served as pall bearers. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Feldhauser of Grayling were present at the funeral.

These conjectures run the gamut of total destruction by tidal wave or earthquake of the entire task force in the vicinity of the bomb down to the theory that the bomb might even prove a dud.

Howard Nugent, speaker of the House, who ran unsuccessfully for lieutenant governor, had a premonition of the voters' unrest. In a conversation with the writer of this column, Nugent disclosed that he was gravely disturbed by the widespread impression existing in the minds of voters everywhere, that conditions at Lansing were "rotten" and that a drastic clean-up was needed. During his travels Nugent questioned strangers without revealing his own identity. The average voter he never heard of Nugent; he suspected that many legislators were crooked.

Richard Cook, editor of the Hastings Banner, which championed the Sigler cause, now in the returns, said "the average voter is pretty much of an independent" and hence resents what appears to be a machine attempt to put over one of its own members.

CIRCUIT COURT TO OPEN TUESDAY

With Circuit Court Judge John C. Shaffer of Gladwin presiding, the July term of the Crawford County Circuit Court will open here at the Court House Tuesday afternoon.

Two criminal cases are on the court calendar. Both men, Virgil Lee and John H. Wareham, are residents of Roscommon County and were brought to Justice Court before Justice Emil Giegling by troops from the Grayling State Police Post, for assisting and abetting in keeping and maintaining for hire, gain or reward, slot machines. Both pleaded guilty and were bound over to Circuit Court by Justice Giegling.

A civil case to be tried by jury is also on the docket, with Royale Wright, as trustee of the National Log Construction Company as plaintiff and Ezra A. Wood as defendant.

Three divorce cases are on the Chancery Case calendar.

Twenty-four Crawford County residents have been chosen for jury duty. Robert Funk, Clemon Blaine and Albert Knibb were drawn from the City of Grayling; John Turner, Albert Madill, Robert Lozon and Clare Melroy from Frederic Township; William Miller, Emma Stillwagon, Arthur Feldhauser and Ray Duby from Lovells Township; William Ferguson, Ivan Billman, Joseph Mallinger and Marion M. Richmond from Beaver Creek Township; Harry McEvers, Richard Habbitt and Pearl White from Maple Forest Township; Hugo Schreiber, Nelson Corwin and Norval Stephan from Grayling Township; and Ernest F. Corwin, Sarah E. Hartman and Robert A. Funch from South Branch Township.

Accident Is Fatal For Earl Wythe

Carlton Wythe suffered severe facial and chest injuries when he drove over a curb and into the Jay Barnard residence, Charlotte, Michigan, in an effort to avoid a collision with another car at the intersection of Horatio and Warren streets, in that city.

Also injured in the Wythe car were Mr. Wythe's father, Earl Wythe, 73, who suffered neck and knee bruises, and Robert Anthony, 28, and Herbert Feldhauser, 21, who received minor bruises. All were treated at the Hayes-Beach-Green Hospital. The other car, driven by Raymond Radee, 18, escaped damage. The impact of the crash moved Robert Anthony, 28, and Herbert Feldhauser, 21, into the Barnard dwelling.

Earl Wythe passed away Sunday morning from the shock of the accident and was buried from Charlotte Tuesday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, interment being in Grand Lodge Cemetery, Charlotte, James Herbert and Don Feldhauser, grandchildren of the deceased, and Gerald Fuller of Marshall served as pall bearers. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Feldhauser of Grayling were present at the funeral.

Bill of Rights Works Both Ways . . .

In April Congress passed the Lea Bill which provides fine and imprisonment for any union which compels broadcasters to hire more employees than are needed "to perform actual service". In calling the strike, James C. Petrillo, President of the American Federation of Musicians, said the union appreciates that this action is contrary to the restrictions of the Lea Bill, but that he and his union would resist the law "until we are told by the Supreme Court of the United States that the Bill of Rights and the abolition of slavery do not apply to American musicians."

There is comedy in that statement. Just where does the Bill of Rights give any man authority to tell another man to hire three people he doesn't need, or to tell men working for another man to stop working, or where does it provide that before a man can work he must join some organization and pay monthly dues for the privilege of working? The Bill of Rights would permit a man to join any organization he desired, and by the same token it would respect his right not to join. It is supposed to work both ways.

The Bill of Rights came into being to help guarantee freedom. When a man is forced to join any organization regardless of his desire to do so, before he can earn a living, he is not a free man.

MICHIGAN MIRROR

Not to be overlooked is the return of Dr Eugene C Keyes to the state political picture. Keyes resembles Sigler in many ways. He is an idealist, a crusader, a reformer. He declined to play along with Governor Kelly in the first term when Kelly sought to make the highway commissioner an appointive office. Keyes' forthright stand caught the public fancy, and the governor went down to defeat on this legislative issue.

This column said recently that Keyes was spending $20,000 in the 1946 primary. The actual figure was less—$15,000, all paid by Keyes from his own pocket.
Governor Kelly never took Keyes into his councils during a legislative session. Thus indirectly snubbed by the governor, Keyes takes particular delight in the ballot tornado of June 18.

According to Lieut. Governor Brown, his defeat was due in part to his dilemma of being caught between two grand juries. The Macomb grand jury indicted Ivan Johnson, former Macomb County prosecutor, who led the state senate committee investigation of Sigler's expenditures at Lansing.
This popularized Sigler in the voters' minds.
The other factor, according to Brown, was the "failure" of the Lansing grand jury to bring out the much anticipated bank indictments prior to the election.

Sigler was all primed and ready to release these indictments in mid-January prior to the Frank McKay trial. Saturday, January 12, was to have been the big day. On reconsid-eration, however, Sigler decided to wait until after the McKay trial. Then came the Ivan Johnson senatorial investigation. Sigler's ouster as prosecutor, and his bold declaration of candidacy which this column predicted prior to the formal entry.

As we pointed out last week, the primary returns left many deep scars in the Michigan Republican party. If the Sigler clean-up progresses with a second repudiation of the Kelly administration at the July 5th convention, temporary scars could develop into an open break.
The changing picture at Lansing makes one thing sure, at least, Michigan is due to witness a colorful, spectacular, old-fashioned political fight next Fall. It should be a honey.

not mentioned. Nightcrawlers, minnows or crawfish are good live baits; for fly fishing we prefer a streamer used with small spinner; bucktail fly used with large spinner is an old standby of users of bait casting rods. Best time for bass fishing is in the early morning, or early or late in the evening.

Sailor Huddleston says it is a bit too hot to talk of anything but jumping in the creek; Ernie Bor-chers has the same idea; but both go fishing o' evenings. Favorite trout fly of both right now is the Royal Coachman.

In Appreciation . .

I take this opportunity to express my deep gratitude to the voters of the 10th District for their continued confidence in me, as shown in recent Primary Election.
With Congress in session, and important questions daily coming before the House of Representatives,
I felt it my duty to remain on the job in Washington.
I was confident I could depend upon my friends to carry on for me.
My heartiest thanks to all of them.

Roy O. Woodruff.

was assisting his father, Frank Ahman, chief mechanic for the Saginaw-Hanson Co., in their machine shop, oiling machinery, when his sleeve caught in a line shaft. The young man had practically all his clothes torn off his body, and an artery was severed in his left arm. He lost a large amount of blood, but his father, with presence of mind, tied a rope above the injury, stopping the blood flow. He was taken to Dr Keyport's office.

STORIES OF HOW NAMES HELPED MAKE AMERICA GREAT

RUBBER HAS MORE THAN 350 USES, SALLY.

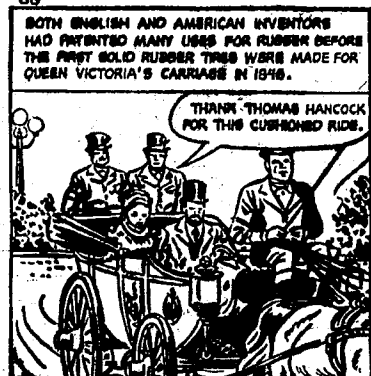

ON HIS SECOND VOYAGE TO THE NEW WORLD COLUMBUS SAW THE INDIANS PLAY A GAME WITH BOUNCING BALLS.

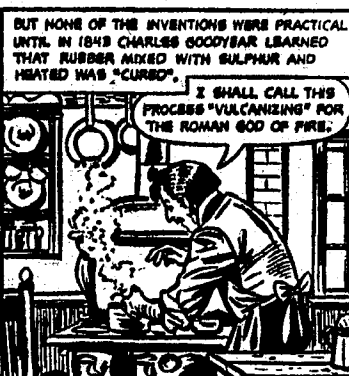

INDIAN-MADE BOTTLES, SHOES, WATER-PROOF PONCHOES, AND OTHER RUBBER ITEMS FROM BRAZIL, EXCITED EUROPEANS AND WHITE AMERICANS UNTIL THE 1800'S.

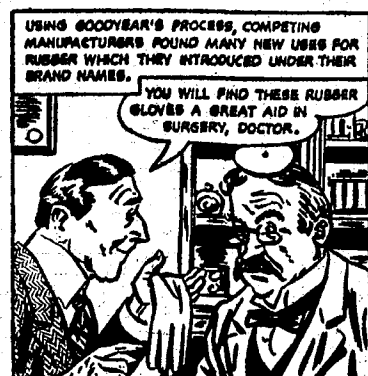

IN 1770 DR. JOSEPH PRIESTLY, ENGLISH SCIENTIST, USED THE STRANGER "GUM" TO MAKE RUBBERS, SO IT HAS BEEN CALLED "RUBBER" IN ENGLISH EVER SINCE.

BOTH ENGLISH AND AMERICAN INVENTORS HAD PATENTED MANY USES FOR RUBBER BEFORE THE FIRST SOLID RUBBER TIRE WAS MADE FOR QUEEN VICTORIA'S CAARRAGE IN 1846.

BUT NONE OF THE INVENTIONS WERE PRACTICAL UNTIL IN 1846 CHARLES GOODYEAR LEARNED THAT RUBBER MIXED WITH SULPHUR AND HEATED WAS "CURRED".

USING GOODYEAR'S PROCESS, COMPETING MANUFACTURERS FOUND MANY NEW USES FOR RUBBER WHICH THEY INTRODUCED UNDER THEIR BRAND NAMES.

NOW THOUSANDS OF SCIENTISTS IN MANUFACTURING RESEARCH LABORATORIES WORK YEAR ROUND TO IMPROVE BRAND-IDENTIFIED RUBBER PRODUCTS AND CREATE NEW ONES.

SYNOPSIS
CHAPTER I: Spratt Herlong was a major producer of motion pictures. He called Elizabeth, his wife, to join him at lunch. Elizabeth knew that something was not going right at the studio and that her husband desired her presence, more to talk to her than to receive any real assistance.
CHAPTER II: At the start of World War I Elizabeth had married. Her husband soon sailed for France and later was reported killed in action. Elizabeth's second husband, this memory always returned when she thought of Dick going to war.
CHAPTER III
In one corner stood her radio, so she could listen to the programs she liked without interruption, and in another corner the desk and wastebasket that Spratt called her office, since it was there that she wrote letters, paid bills, jotted household memoranda and took care of the various other tasks that had to be performed with pen and paper. By a window was her chaise-longue, and on the table beside it lay the book she was reading, her private telephone and notebook of unlisted numbers. Though the windows were usually open her room always had a faint fragrance of its own, compounded of toilet soap and the lotion she used to protect her skin from the dryness of the air. Whenever she came inside and the familiar scent greeted her, Elizabeth felt delightfully welcome.
For a moment she stood turning the radio knob. The radio mourned that there were no flowers in its garden of love, offered her a remedy for acid indigestion and inquired persistently if she was troubled by nagging pains in the small of her back. With a wrinking of her nose, Elizabeth switched off the voices and decided to read until it was time to get out the makings of the dinner cocktails. If she started now she could probably finish her novel. Stretching out on the chaise-longue, she took up the book and found the place where she had left off last night. It was not an intellectual treat, but it was interesting—after trick of the light or of her own mind it had looked like October 6, 1918.

And now all her power of will and reason was insufficient to hold her back from the shadow into which she was slipping, into which she still went down once every two or three years in spite of her full life and happy marriage, impelled each time by some trivial incident that had no connection with the pain it brought. October 6, 1942. October 6, 1918. Twenty-four years. She tried to stop it, but nothing she had learned in her lifetime could stop this darkness once it began to close around her.

She was remembering that day, and nothing she could do or think of could make her stop remembering. It was just about this time in the afternoon, and the autumn sun coming in by the front door glittered through the hall and fell on the yellow telegram she held in her hand, with its letters blue-black against the shining sheet of paper. "I regret to inform you . . . Sergeant Arthur Kittredge . . . killed . . ."

There was no reason for this, Elizabeth was telling herself angrily. She had fought and conquered it years ago, she had rebuilt her life in the knowledge that she had conquered it, she was a perfectly rational woman and a very happy one, there was no reason why every now and then some incident of no importance should strike her down and leave her as she was now, gulvering under an assault of pain. Lying on the chaise-longue, her arms crossed over her knees and her hands pressing against her temples, she fought it with all the strength she had. But it did no good and she had known it would not. She might as well have reading All This and Heaven Too she had learned that the English author who wrote under the pseudonym of Joseph Shearing had published, several years before, another fictionalized version of the Prasin murder, and Elizabeth was well enough acquainted with the sinister Shearing heroines to be sure that the governess as portrayed here would not be a fit companion for anybody's children. She had not been disappointed. Having begun an evil career on page one, the damsel was now having most wickedly, demurely in her bonnet and chaw, while she dreamed up yet more sins. Absorbed in the lady's beruffled iniquity, she was annoyed when she heard the buzz of her telephone. This phone was not connected with the others in the house and its number was known only to her best friends, so the call could be for nobody but herself. She pulled her hand out of the book, put her cigarette into the ashtray and reached reluctantly for the phone. Spratt's voice greeted her.

"Elizabeth, are we having anybody to dinner tomorrow night?"

"No, do you want to bring in somebody?"

"Kessler. I've just been talking to him. He's got an idea for clearing up this story. So can't have anybody else around. I want to go into it with him after dinner."

"All right, tell him tomorrow at seven-thirty. Has he got Hollywood ulcers, or can he eat anything?"

"He can eat anything, so far as I know, but remember what I told you—only one hand. Have something that won't be too awkward."

"Oh yes, I'm glad you reminded me. Soup to start with, and what about chicken patties? Then he won't have to use a knife and fork at once."

"Sounds fine to me."

"And one thing more—has he got a wife or anything that I should call up and invite with him?"

"No wife—come to think of it, though, I did hear him mention a daughter, but I don't know how old she is. I'll find out if she's grown and let you know. You'd better tell Dick to stay around and take her out of the way after dinner so Kessler and I can talk."

"Oh dear. Does the girl speak English?"

"I've no idea," Spratt laughed heartily. "Tell him she speaks French, but this is the way I make a living for my family and there's no way out."

"You'd better start your heart bleeding for me. I'm the one who'll have to break the news to him. All right, I'll do my best, dinner, Dick and everything."

"I know you will. I've got to go now, but I'll be waiting for me. Thanks," said Spratt, and hung up. Elizabeth screwed up her face as she reached for her desk calendar to make a note of tomorrow's dinner. She did not mind it, for she was used to entertaining Spratt's colleagues, but she felt sorry for Dick. He could take the girl to a show, if she understood the language well enough. She ought to, Spratt had said something at lunch about Kessler's having been two or three years in this country. Elizabeth hoped Miss Kessler would at least be pretty. Flipping the leaves of the calendar, she tried to remember what the date was. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday—today was Monday, so here was the page for tomorrow, blank but for a note reminding herself of an appointment with the hair-dresser. She was scribbling "Kessler to dinner 7:30," when the date at the bottom of the page leaped up at her, and struck her and glared at her and made her start backward to put the calendar down quickly, but she could still see the date and she put her arm over her eyes as though by doing that she could shut it out of sight of her mind. October 6, 1942. Her imagination was making such a fierce effort to adjust itself that even with her eyes covered she could still see it, October 6, 1942. For though the figures did not resemble each other, there had been a fraction of a second when by some new pictures of yourself?" She sent the pictures, but never suggested again that he write her anything but what he wanted to.

There were no letters on the table today, nothing but the telegram. She picked it up and slit it open, wondering vaguely who could have anything to say to her important enough to be sent by wire, and then she saw that it came from the War Department. The message was mercifully brief. It merely told her that Arthur was dead. She did not know then that he had died of wounds received at Chateau-Thierry. They told her that later, in a letter from the Red Cross.

She did not understand even the little they had told her. She stood still, staring at the sheet of paper in her hand, all her instincts of self-protection rising up to prevent her understanding what it said.

(Wasn't it enough to have lived through this once, twice, ten times? Elizabeth tried to think of something else, tried so hard that the palms of her hands were damp with the effort. But she lived through it again, helplessly.)

She folded up the telegram and put it into her purse. She picked up a vase of flowers on the table and straightened the cloth under it, looked at the picture on the cover of a magazine lying near by, brushed a speck of dust from a chair, picked up her knitting-bag and went upstairs to the bedroom she had shared with Arthur before she joined the army. The windows were open to the afternoon sun. Arthur had said, "Let's find a house that has the bedroom on the west side. There's no sense in inviting the sun to come in and wake us up at four or five o'clock all summer long. Any time we have to get up at dawn we can use an alarm clock, so why not let ourselves sleep late when we have a chance?" Elizabeth had never thought about it, but once he called her attention to it she wondered why everybody didn't make allowance for such an obvious fact. It was odd, she had thought at first, that Arthur should be so much interested in dwellings, for he knew nothing about household matters. He was a research chemist employed by one of the oil companies. But Arthur was interested in everything. He had never been bored in his life, and never understood how anybody could be, with a perpetually fascinating world to be enjoyed and the longest lifetime too short to enjoy all of it.

Even in this ordinary little house he had arranged their room perfectly—the bookshelves within reach of the bed, the light excellently placed for reading, her dressing-table between the windows, the long mirror so she could see herself from hat to shoes when she got dressed. "You have such fine ankles," he said to her, "imagine your having to dress in a room where you haven't a chance to see whether or not your stockings are on straight." He had planned everything for her. She and let him do it, without realizing that since they could not afford everything, he would get what she needed and take what was left. So she had not noticed until later that his shaving-glass did not turn properly and he had to stretch his neck to get at those hairs around the angle of his chin. She was saving part of her army allowance now to buy him a new mirror when he came back, and a better light for his writing table, though she was going to let him pick out the latter for himself. Arthur was not, thank heaven, a sentimental goose. He might have worn a hideous necktie if she had given him one, but if she should give him an inadequate gadget for his work he would not use it any longer than it took to buy a better one. So she was going to give him the money she had saved for the lamp and let him select it, as soon as he came back and got to work again.

A hundred hammers started to beat on her head. She dropped her knitting-bag in the middle of the floor and grabbed at the catch of her purse to get out that thing inside, which she seemed to remember had said what it could not possibly say. But it did say just what she recalled. It told her Arthur was dead.

Then all of a sudden she knew what had happened. The purse dropped out of her hand and fell softly on the hall-made army sweater that was tumbling out of her bag. The telegram dropped with it, and a little wind from outside picked it up and began blowing it merrily around the room. Her legs went down like strips of macaroni. She caught at the nearest solid object, which happened to be the bed, and then at the nearest object on that, which happened to be a pillow, and she clamped the corner of the pillow between her teeth and heard herself making fierce choking noises down in her throat, like an animal strangling.

At first she was not thinking of anything. The world was simply full of a wild pain that had clamped on her and crushed out of her everything but conscious awareness of the pain itself. Then she remembered his arms around her and herself saying, "Arthur, you're hurting me!" and when he said, "I'm sorry, dearest," and relaxed his grip she was sorry she had spoken. None of this was possible to understand. That any man so alive could be blown out like a match, could be annihilated.
